SUBJECT: May 1982 Corrections Bond Measure

On August 13, I indicated to you a need to begin organizing our efforts on the upcoming corrections bond measure. Based on your positive response, a meeting was called between Marla Rae, Attorney General's Office; Dave Fiskum, Department of Human Resources; and myself in early September. At this preliminary meeting, various alternatives were discussed with general agreement that the very first steps in this should be the establishment of a small high-powered steering committee representing those groups of professionals that should have a high level of interest in this measure.

The areas that should be represented include the Governor's Office, Attorney General's Office, House and Senate, District Attorney, city police, cities, counties, judges and active citizens. I would suggest that the governor serve as chairman, but due to your tough schedule, I would suggest Bob Oliver as a staff alternate. In addition, it is appropriate that Bob Watson represent DHR.

A reasonable timetable would include having any suggested appointees to the group from you within the next week or so, followed by the formal selection of the steering committee by you and the Attorney General by mid-October, looking toward a completed committee and a first meeting sometime in early November. Shirley Woodrow will serve the staff person for the selection process.

Dave Fiskum and Marla Rae will draft a series of campaign alternatives for the steering committee to evaluate at the first meeting. I believe that you and Dave Frohnmayer should review and approve this document prior to the first meeting.

We have already heard from Paul Schneider, Association of Oregon Counties, and Jack Bails, Metro, both wondering what was going to be done about this campaign. They are both anxious to do something and willing to coordinate with a state-wide effort. Attached are copies of some material which may prove helpful on this matter.

FACT SHEET

Corrections Facility Bond Measure

Legislative Authority: HJR 22

HB 2956

(passed by 1981 Oregon Legislature)

Amount: $60 million

Purpose: To finance, acquire, construct, equip or improve state, regional, county, or local corrections facilities.

These facilities may include jails or prisons, work camps, and centers for housing inmates in the process of paying fines or making restitution.

Timetable: (1) February 1, 1982 -- Counties submit proposals to State Corrections Division for local facilities financed by bond proceeds.

- (2) May 1, 1982 -- State Corrections Division develops "state-wide corrections facility plan," incorporating plans to meet state and local space needs.
- (3) May 18, 1982 -- Primary election vote on bond measure.
- (4) If bond measure passes, State Corrections Division submits state-wide corrections facility plan to next regular or special legislative session for approval.

Special Provisions:

- (1) HB 2956 provides that the state-wide corrections facility plan will meet state needs by providing up to 472 new bedspaces, as follows:
  - (a) Expand capacity to house up to 250 additional felony offenders under state jurisdiction.
  - (b) Use $5.5 million of the bond sale proceeds to build or acquire forest work camps to house up to 150 inmates, and to build an administrative segregation facility at Oregon State Penitentiary to house up to 72 inmates.
- (2) Plans to meet county needs will be evaluated on three bases: Whether they consist of less expensive alternatives to jails, whether they are designed to promote productive inmate activity and industry, and whether they complement Community Corrections programs.

Background:

Oregon has not built a major correctional facility for more than 20 years. During that time, the state's population has increased nearly 50 per cent. As the population has grown, crime has increased. Today more offenders are being sent to prison, and kept in prison longer, than at any time in recent history. This simply means that Oregon needs more space to house these offenders. Paying the cost of these facilities through bonding allows the state to spread the cost over time, rather than to take the money in one lump sum out of the state's general tax revenues.
